El análisis editorial de BMAJ:

In the eight years since it was established through a merger, the firm has consistently added to its client list year on year. Bofill Mir & Alvarez Jana's clear strengths are in litigation, arbitration, natural resources and corporate and M&A, but this full-service firm has taken steps to bolster other areas too, such as environment and administrative law, and, more recently, antitrust. The firm favours complex transactional work and its blend of disputes and natural resources capabilities makes it very well-positioned to help mining and energy clients handle increased scrutiny by regulators.

Bofill Mir & Alvarez Jana deserves praise for its fresh outlook, which has led to a diverse workforce and a staunch commitment to pro bono work. Ana María Yuri, a talented transactional lawyer, is one of very few female managing partners in Chilean firms.

As one of the youngest firms in this chapter, Bofill Mir & Alvarez Jana is still developing its internal processes with an eye to making it the best place for lawyers to work in Chile. It has recently implemented changes to its compensation system and career paths. The firm's leadership is keen to make further adjustments until it comes up with the perfect model and consults lawyers for feedback. It also looks after its talent through promotions, adding new partners in its labour and corporate divisions in 2017. Bofill Mir & Alvarez Jana has a resolutely international outlook, with six lawyers currently on placements at foreign firms.
